Schools of Norway, Waterford and Oxford.

True C. Morrill says:—"Due to the prevailing epidemic of influenza it is deemed advisable by the Norway school officials and board of health to definitely postpone opening the Norway village schools to Oct. 21. In the outlying rural schools where there are no indications of the disease it is deemed advisable to continue during this, the best school weather of the year. All teachers have been instructed to close school if there are any cases of the disease in the neighborhood of the school or any indications in the school. I am informed by the doctors that this is all the precaution that can be taken.

"The same state of affairs exists in Waterford. In the separate neighborhoods unless health conditions indicate a necessity for closing, it is as well for the children to be in school as playing together.

"Dr. Holden, chairman of the board of health of Oxford informs me, Oct. 9, that to his knowledge there is not a case of influenza in the town of Oxford. Although the school board in any town can close its schools as a precautionary measure for protecting the health of the children, yet the board of health has the right to say when they shall open as dictated by the health conditions."

Red Cross News.

James Jackson, the manager of the New England Division, American Red Cross telegraphs the Southern Oxford County Chapter, asking that all school teachers who can serve as aids to doctors and nurses in their own communities in combating influenza announce their willingness to do so at once. Norway teachers who can assist in this way should register with Mrs. Hugh Pendexter, chairman of the chapter.

An earnest call for women for canteen and hut service in France has been received from Divisional headquarters by Mrs. Pendexter. Two thousand women between 25 and 35 years of age, physically strong and personally attractive, will be selected from the entire United States and sent overseas within the next five weeks. Southern Oxford County Chapter is expected to send at least one such candidate. No woman will be considered who has a father, son or husband in the U. S. army or navy, or in the foreign service of any relief organization. They must be typically American, with no German or Austrian connection. No salaries go with this service but the Red Cross will pay living and traveling expenses and provide the uniform. Applicants for this branch of service should address Mrs. Pendexter.

The Red Cross will provide the mourning brassards to be worn by the relatives of men who have given their lives to their country. The brassard consists of a band of black broadcloth, three inches wide, to be worn on the left sleeve between the elbow and shoulder. The star or stars are worn midway of the width of the band. These will be provided without charge to the parents and the widows of our honored dead, and supplied to other relatives at cost. As soon as a lessening of the influenza epidemic permits the reopening of the Red Cross room applications for the brassards will be received by the chairman.

The campaign for fruit stones and nut shells must be vitalized. Aggressive work in this line is of vital importance. It is impossible to make the right kind of carbon for gas mask without fruit stones and nut shells. The Red Cross is now receiving one sack where it should receive ten. Every community in Southern Oxford County reached by the Advertiser should speed up its campaign immediately and communicate results to Norway headquarters, when it will be advised where to ship collections.

A THOROUGH TEST

One To Convince the Most Skeptical Norway Reader.

The test of time is the test that counts.

Doan's Kidney Pills have made their reputation by effective action.

The following case is typical.

Norway residents should be convinced

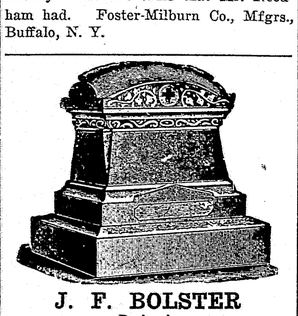

The testimony is confirmed—the proof complete.

Testimony like this cannot be ignored.

Wm. O. Needham, retired farmer, Main St., Norway, says: "At different times when I have taken cold, my kidneys have become affected. Several years ago when I felt that my kidneys needed attention, I got Doan's Kidney Pills from F. P. Stone's drug store. They strengthened my kidneys, ridding my system of the excess uric acid and in a short time I felt much better."

The above statement was given July 24, 1908 and on June 6, 1916, Mr. Needham said: "I still gladly endorse Doan's Kidney Pills. My confidence in them is as strong as ever. I occasionally use Doan's when I feel in need of them and always get fine results.

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Needham had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

OUR SERVICE
And What it Means to You
We Have a Joint Interest in This Community
And We Wish to Join With You in Every Way to Promote the Communities' Interests

In a sense, this community is like a farm—it pays according to the way in which it is treated.

The successful farmer co-operates with his farm.

Knowing that certain soil elements are necessary to healthy crop growth, he sees to it that these elements are maintained.

The same principle holds good in community development.

Our community is composed of two closely-related elements—town and country.

They are both essential to healthy community growth. Neglect or mistreatment of either of them by the other affects both—it injures the whole community. Both elements must be maintained.

Accomplishing this is simply a matter of sincere co-operation among all of us in this community.

Our idea of our own part to play for community good in a business way is—

To sell only such implements as have the quality to give high grade results in the field.

To consider good performance by our implements as a part of our obligation.

To sell every implement at a fair price.

To practice the square deal towards each and every customer.

On this basis we invite the co-operation of every farmer in this community.

RED RASPBERRIES, PEARS, PEACHES, PINEAPPLE: indeed any of the dozen and one SUPERBA fruits.
"Like Mother used to make"—"Melt in your mouth" (phrases you've known since childhood) inadequately express the delightful flavor, wholesome quality that distinguishes these unequalled, reasonably priced desserts.
Why Bother To Cook Desserts?
Why spend hours over a hot stove, getting dessert for dinner—supper—company when such delightful foods as these are so easily obtainable?

God Bless That Boy!

"The Little Flag on Our House"

William C. Demorest, in Leslie's Weekly

The little flag on our house
Is floating all the day
Beside the great big Stars and Stripes;
You can almost hear it say
To all the folks in our street,
As the breezes make it dance:
"Look up and see my own blue star—
We've got a boy in France!"

The little flag on our house,
It floats sometimes at night,
And you can see it 'way up there
When the street lamp shines just right,
And sometimes, 'long toward morning,
When the cop comes by, perchance
It signals with its one blue star;
"We've got a boy in France!"

The little flag on our house
Will wave, and wave, and wave
Until our boy comes home again,
Or finds in France his grave.
Nay—tho' its blue star turns to gold,
Because of War's grim chance,
It still shall wave to say: "Thank God,
We've got a boy in France!"

Save to Buy and
Buy to Keep

TODAY he is more than your boy or my boy! Today he fights for the purity of all womanhood, the safety of all children, for tenderness to all the aged. Today he avenges the outraged women, the wantonly crippled children, the cruelly treated old left by the dastardly Hun. Today he fights to restore and maintain peace in all the world so wickedly disturbed by the gruesome German. He fights to reconstitute, as self-governing nations, those peoples ruthlessly destroyed by the merciless military masters of Hundom.

But We Must Do Our Part!

We can join the Fighting Fourth by buying Liberty Bonds at once to our utmost. We can lend as the boys in France fight—to the utmost.

NORWAY MEN IN THE FAMOUS 103D INFANTRY REGIMENT

The Yankee Division

FIRST DIVISION ON FRENCH SOIL

Some Things Our Co. D Boys have been Doing Since They Left Oxford County Hills.

The Second Maine was one of the best National Guard regiments in the United States. It was brought to war strength two months before any other white regiment in the country, viz; 2002 enlisted men and 58 officers. The representative of the American Railway Association stated that the three divisions of this regiment unloaded at Westfield in just ten minutes, a world's record.

At Westfield this Maine regiment was aumented by men from the 1st New Hampshire Regiment, and later by men from the 8th Mass., and became the 103d Infantry Regiment, Incorporated into the 26th Division, this regiment followed Pershing to France, and this division was the first division to arrive on French soil. It is now known as the Yankee Division.

The 103d arrived in France in October, 1917, and was quartered for training purposes in the Vosges, in the Neufchateau area, in a village of some three thousand inhabitants, called Liffold le Grande. This town is situated in what was known as the Zone of Advancement. It was a five or six day's march from the front. No aeroplanes were seen here, but on still nights the rumble of the guns was sometimes heard. The winter was cold, but did not compare in severity with our Maine winters. At times there were eight inches of snow, and occasionally the thermometer registered twenty degrees below zero. The regiment received its training from the 163rd French Regiment, also quartered in the town, resting, and being recruited for the thirtieth time. Instruction was received in the use of the bayonet, granade, automatic rifle, gas and fire-bomb. Practice was also had in the French formations. The regiment remained in Liffold le Grande until February, 1918. The boys look upon this village as their home in France, and their relations with the villagers were so pleasant that these villagers asked that the boys be returned to them, an unusual occurrence.

During Feburary and March, 1918, the regiment was brigaded between two French Regiments on the westerly end of the Chemin de Dames, in the vivinity of Pinon Wood, Allemant, and the Aillette Canal. Just at that time, the sector was a quiet one. The 103d in taking up its new position on this sector passed through Soisson on Feburary 8th, and marched about eight miles to a point some three miles behind the battle front. Here they took up quarters in an immense cave, or chalk quarry, forty feet underground, capable of holding with ease the entire regiment. The line between the Allies and the Germans was here marked by the Aillette Canal, a space of perhaps one hundred and forty yards separating the two armies. The work of this division in this sector consisted of strengthening the barbed wire entanglements and of digging trenches farther back, to be used if necessity required. Much of this work was done under artillery fire. Spaulding, of H. Company, and Hunt, of Headquarters Co., were here killed by shell fire. Trouble was also experienced from gas. Each battalion, made up of four companies, would hold the front trench for sixteen days, four days to a company. The Augusta Company, being quarantined for a time, because of scarlet fever, measles, and mumps, had but little of this front line work. Uuder the tutelage of the French the boys resisted enemy raids, executed raids of their own, captured prisoners, and lost very few men.

While the infantry were receiving this instruction, the artillerymen were learning to handle the French '75 guns. One night, when an Allied raid was to be made for the purpose of taking prisoners, the French allowed their American scholars to lay the barrage. The French '75 is capable of firing about six shots a minute without heating the gun. When the word was given for the barrage, the Americans, in their zeal to give the Boche hell, fired some twenty-three shots a minute, in spite of the agonized "Non, non, non's" of the excited Frenchmen. As a result of this usage, some four batteries, numbering sixteen guns, were put out of commission, and had to be sent back for repairs. A German officer, captured during this raid, asked, as a last favor, before being sent to the rear, to see the new three inch machine gun which they had been using against them. The '75s had been handled so rapidly that the German thought the French had a new automatic '75.

About the 19th or 20th of March, word suddenly arrived for the regiment to hike out, as they supposed for a rest area. Before they had all left the vicinity, the big German drive on the Chemin de Dames was under way, and had this regiment remained, it would in all probability have been annihilated as were the French by the German hords which overran and took this powerful defense system. As it was, companies E, F, G, and H, comprising the Skowhegan Dover-Foxcroft, Bangor and Waterville boys, were harried by hostile aviators. The station at which they were to entrain was destroyed by air-craft bombs, and the crew refused for a time to operate the train. The second battalion and Headquarters Company were subjected to terrific shell-fire, and escaped casualties only by the greatest of good fortune.

By rail the regiment was again carried to the southeastern part of France, and detrained at Bar sur Aube. From this place they hiked for five days across country to their original training village, Liffold le Grande. Here they expected to remain for training purposes, to put into practice what they had learned from the French in the Chemin de Dames area. Such was not the case, however, for the regiment, after six days rest, was marched easterly and took up positions in reserve in the Toul sector, south of St. Liffold le Grande. Here they expected Aprement, and Seichprey. The first all-day battle between German and American troops took place in this sector and the 103d saw some fierce fighting and won great distinction.

The 104th Massachuetts met the first attack launched by the Germans against the American troops, and by their valor won glory and decoration for the regiment, at Bois Brule. They were relieved by the 103d and it was here that the Maine boys received their first real baptism by fire and proved their mettle. On May 20th the Connecticut regiment at Seichprey saw terrific fighting, and met with great losses, but took the town with the aid of the 101st Massachuetts troops.

It was at Xivray, on June 16th that the Maine boys distinguished themselves in an action that should live long in the history of this war. The Germans had made great preparation for an attack on the American lines. From a German officer captured later, it was learned that the Germans planned to take American prisoners for information purposes, and then to push on through Xivray to Toul and Bouoq, their objectives. Nine artillery trains were seen to pull into the German lines on the afternoon preceding the attack, and others were heard to arrive that night. The assault was preceded by an intense bombardment of the town of Xivray and the back areas for a distance of twelve miles. Following the bombardment the Germans sent forward some six hundred picked shock-troops. Their engineers came ahead and blew the barbed wire. Then came the liquid-fire men, followed by the machine gun men, the infantry, and the pioneers, in the order named. The supporting American batteries caught sight of the advancing Germans and laid down a barrage behind them, shutting off retreat to the German lines or the bringing up of supports. The attack was made on the village of Xivray, held by the Eastport Company, supported by the Houlton Company. The Skowhegan Company also had some part in the fight. Probably fifty men out of these companies actually participated in the fighting. The artillery and machine guns opened up on the Germans at the same moment. The American barrage was wonderful. Not a shot went astray. The liason work between the fighting men and headquarters, between the infantry and the artillery was perfect, although all wires had been carried down in the preliminary bombardment. The Germans were literally mown down. Of the six hundred picked troops who came forward, but fifty escaped death. The German dead lay four or five deep in places. In front of one machine-gun position, forty-five dead Germans were strung along the wire. Not a German got by the wire and into the trenches. Not content with waiting, the Maine boys went out and mopped up what was left of the Kaiser's best, who had been told that the town was held by but a handful of Americans, and to "Go and get them."

At a critical moment in the attack a German machine-gun squad had entered a road between the trenches that would have allowed them to make a flank attack and do terrific damage to the defenders. They were met by Verne Boutlier of Houlton. He attacked the advancing Germans with an automatic rifle. The rifle being put out of commission, he went after the Germans armed only with a bayonet grasped in his hand.. He took the machine-gun single handed, and turned it against the attackers, and for a few moments, alone, until his platoon came up, he held the road and prevented what would have been a disastrous flank attack. A liquid-fire squard, of three men, succeeded in entering the town. They were seen by Captain Williams, who shot with his revolver, the man carrying the tank. The bullet passed through the man's body and into the tank which exploded and destroyed the three flame-throwers.

The Germans took one prisoner, an Eastport boy whose eagerness had carried him too far in advance of his fellows, and who had been wounded. Lieutenant Irvin E. Doane of the Houlton company, observing the plight of this boy, called for volunteers from his company to go to the rescue. Every man stepped forward. Choosing seven of his men, Doane went after the Germans who were in charge of this prisoner. Needless to say, he got them, and released the wounded Eastport boy. On the way back this squad took prisoners a Red Cross man and a German officer. In this battle the American casualties were but twenty men, eight of which were from the Eastport company. The number included both the killed and wounded. For this magnificent work the regiment received special commendation.

The regiment remained in the Toul sector during April, May and June. As they were leaving this sector, under date of June 27, Gen. Passaga, commanding the 32d army corps, French army, issued a general order at the time when the Yankee division was leaving his corps for another sector, in which he said: "Under the distinguished command of their chief, Gen. Edwards, the high spirited soldiers of the Yankee division have taught the enemy some bitter lessons, at Bois Brule, at Seicheprey, at Xivray-Marvoisin; they have taught him to realize the staunch vigor of the sons of the great republic fighting for the world's freedom."

The first of July the regiment started as they supposed for Paris and rest. They expected to take part in the great Fourth of July Celebration in that city. They arrived in sight of Eiffel Tower and were then turned northerly and sent to the Chateau Thierry front, a most important sector.

On June 2, the Second Division made up of the 5th and 6th United States regiments, composed of Marines, and the 9th and 23rd U. S. regular infantry (in which last regiment Edward Allen Whitney, of Augusta, Maine, is First Lieutenant) took their places in this sector to relieve the hard-pressed French. On the 4th the Germans attacking the French retired through their relief which received the attack and stopped it. The next day the Americans charged and turned back the Germans. From the 6th to the 15th this Division made six attacks and received nine counter-attacks being opposed at all times by not less than two and sometimes three German divisions. Among these troops were the Crack German Regiments, the 28th and the 5th Prussian Guards.

Belleau Wood was taken and held and has now been christened "Bois de la Brigade de Marines." It is the fight for these woods which George Patullo so vividly described in the Saturday evening Post of August 31st in his article entitled "Hellwood."

During the fight two battalions of the Third American Division was placed at the disposal of the Second Division, it is their first time in line, and they held the line through Belleau Wood while the 5th and 6th Marines rested after which they went back again to the line and held it until relieved by the 26th Division. By July 6th the 26th had taken up the relief and occupied a line extending about five and one-half miles from Torcy to Chateau Thierry.

On July 11th, as they took up their position in the Chateau Thierry line, General Edwards, as commander of the 26th Division, issued the following order to his troops:

Headquarters 26th Div., A. E. F.,
July 11, 1918.

France.

General Orders No. 60: At the moment that the 26th Division takes up its position on its third sector in three months it is fitting and proper that the division commander should take this opportunity to thank and congratulate the officers and men of the Yankee Division on the record that they achieved since the Division actively took its place in the fighting lines of the Allies for the common cause.

2 You have been taken from a sector where in three battles you have shown that the blood of New England has not attenuated and that the same spirit and traditions which your forefathers made glorious at Lexington and at Bunker Hill still survive in the generation which at Bois Brule, Seicheprey, Humbert Plantation and Xivray have met and defeated the picked troops of the enemy. His four years of experience in active warfare and the ferocity of his methods have not daunted you, and on every occasion where you have been called upon to face him you have distinguished yourself with notable valor and brought credit upon your division and upon the people of New England from which you have come to engage in this righteous conflict.

3 A great honor has been conferred upon the whole division in that the French and American High Command has at this time picked your division to come into this critical sector. That you have been so hurried to this sector is the evidence to you all of the opinion of the High Command of the mettle of which this division is constituted.

4 The past months in battle have brought men and officers into that close union of confidence and affection which have resulted in the growing morale of this division. Looking back on the past four months with its spotless record and known achievements which have been recognized by both France and America, it is with unqualified faith in the future and pride of the past that I see the 26th Division go into a new sector, certain in my conviction that the men of New England will prove once more that they are capable of every affort and every sacrifice which the future may demand of them.

(Signed)
C. R. Edwards,
Major General, Commanding.

From July 6th, to July 15th it was quite on the sector from Torcy to Chateau Thierry. On the latter date, however, the Germans launched their great drive on a front extending from Chateau Thierry to the east of Rheims, and aimed across the Marne, towards Epernay and Challons, their great objectives. The story of how American troops stood fast against the savage rush of the Germans, how they counter-attacked at Crezancy, and drove the Huns back across the Marne, inflicting terrible losses, is already familiar history to American readers. It is also known how General Gouraud and the French stopped the Germans in their drive to the east of Rheims.

This great German offensive halted by American troops, Foch at once took the initiative, and on the evening of the seventeenth of July the 26th Division received orders to go over the top at 4:30 the next morning. The objective assigned to the 103 Regiment was the town of Torcy. The 104th Regiment was assigned Belleau Wood lying to the east of Torcy. The attack was started with a heavy barrage, and at 4:30 the Maine boys went over the top. They took Torcy in twenty-two minutes. In forty-five minutes they had overrun Torcy, taken the trenches on both sides of the town, mopped up the village, and consolidated their positions ready for a counter-attack. Sergeant Harvey Butler of Whitefield since recommended for the distinguished service medal, was in charge of a platoon of forty-three men, mostly Augusta boys, who entered the town and, in less than a half hour, mopped up some two companies of Germans, concealed with machine guns, in dug-outs, in the upper stories of the stone dwellings and in trees. Few prisoners were taken.

Meantime the 104th Regiment, to the east, had not fared so well. They failed to take Belleau Wood plateau under the first barrage. Another was laid at eight o'clock in the morning, but this attack also failed in the face of the desperate German resistance. At ten o'clock however, under cover of a third barrage, the plateau was taken and the Germans driven out. During this time, the 103rd were exposed to artillery fire from Belleau Plateau and had been obliged to protect their flank with machine guns and infantry, in case the Germans should finally hold their positions there.

The manoeuvre being executed by the Allies at this time was a swinging of the whole Soisson-Chateau Thierry line to the east of the latter city as a pivot. When the 103rd went over the top on the morning of July 18th, General Mangin was launching an attack south of Soisson. The 32d American Division was aiding him in this move.

The French operating north of the 103d Regiment were held up to their advance by a strong enemy machine-gun nest at Monthiers. The third battalion of the 103d Regiment consisting of the Augusta, Eastport, Houlton, and Farmington companies, by a well-executed flank attack, dislodged the Germans, and aided the French in their advance. The French general in command, sent a letter to General Edwards, in which he stated that his best troops could have done no better.

On the 20th the division pushed on with Etrepilly, Chante Merle, and Bezuet as its objective, all of which were finally taken.

The Skowhegan company, in this advance, found themselves in an impossible situation, owing to a failure of their supports to arrive on time, and were terribly punished, and forced, temporarily to retire. They reformed, however, pushed forward heroically, and attained all their objectives. "During eight days, practically day and night, our boys fought in the open. They had to face and overcome, often advancing across open fields, artillery fire and concealed machine guns located on nearly every hand. But they fought and advanced, during these eight days over ten miles."

Acts of heroism were too numerous to mention at this time. Every man did his duty unflinchingly. Major Southard of Bangor, wounded through the throat by a machine-gun bullet, with his ear torn by shrapnel, continued to lead his men until forced to retire for medical aid. He left weeping, with the statement that his boys would be all shot up and he would not be there to care for them. The 26th Division, unsupported, pushed on to Epieds and Trugny which they also reduced. The latter town was taken by the Maine boys, but only after repeated and costly attacks as the place was full of machine guns and resisted to the death. The division then pushed on to Fere-en-Tardenois where it was relieved by the Rainbow Division. In this drive, as well as in the actions on the Toul sector, great credit is due the artillerymen of the division for the magnificent ability, courage, and effectiveness with which they handled the guns, both light and heavy. Their splendid work made the deeds of the infantrymen possible and greatly reduced the number of casualties.

The boys from Maine and from Augusta lead the van in the great drive that later resulted in the reduction of the Marne salient, and the great German retreat, which is still under way. They formed the spear head of the great thrust. They were picked for an important service in a critical sector, and they justified the confidence of their superiors. They took what they went after. Every objective was attained. Raw hell could not stop them. Not a foot of ground was lost. Not a prisoner taken from their number. They delivered the goods, and scorned to reckon the price. No braver men, no better soldiers stand on the soil of France to-day, than our Maine boys in the 103rd.

On July 29th, General Degoutte, commanding the VI Army Corps which the Yankee Division was a part, forwarded the following communication to General Edwards:

Army, July 29, 1918.

From General Degoutte, commanding the VIth Army, to General Edwards commanding the 26th American Division.

The operations carried out by the 26th American Division from July 18th to July 24th demonstrated the fine soldierly qualities of this unit and the worth of its leader, General Edwards.

Cooperating in the attack north of the Marne, the 26th Division fought brilliantly on the line Torcy-Belleau, at Monthiers, Epieds, and Trugny and in the Forest of Fere, advancing more than fifteen kilometers in depth in spite of the desperate resistance of the enemy.

I take great pleasure in communicating to General Edwards and his valiant division this expression of my great esteem together with my heartiest congratulations for the manner in which they have served the common cause.

Degoutte.

By command of Major General Edwards.
Official: C. A. Stevens, Adjutant General, Adjutant.

On August 2nd, General Edwards issued the following order to the troops under his command:

Headquarters 26th Division, France.
American Expeditionary Force
August 2, 1918.

To the Officers and Men of the 26th Division:

On July 18th you entered as part of the Allied drive against the enemy, upon the offensive, and continued the offensive combat until the major portion of the command was relieved on July 25th.

On the assumption of the offensive your position in the line demanded an important and difficult manoevere. Your success in this was immediate and great and the way in which you executed it elicited high praise from the French Army Commander. The eight days from July 18th to 25th marking the first great advance against the enemy in which American troops bore proportionately a considerable share, are sure of historical setting. Your part therein can never be forgotten. In those eight days you carried your line as far as any part of the advance was carried. Torcy, Belleau, Givry, the Bouresches Woods, Rochet Woods, Hill 190 over looking Chateau Thierry, Etrepilly, Epieds, Trugny, and finally La Fere Woods and the objective, the Jaulgonne Fere en Tardenois Road, belong to your arms. You are the recipient of praise, thanks, and congratulations of our commander in-chief. You went unafraid into the face of the enemy's fire; you forced him to withdraw before you, or to accept the alternative of hand to hand combat, in which you proved yourselves morally and physically his superior, you gave freely and gave much of your strength, and of your blood and your lives, until pushed beyond mere physical endurance, fighting night and day, you still forced yourselves forward, sustained almost by spirit alone.

These things are now part of your own consciousness. Nothing can detract from them. Nothing that I can say can add to them. But I can testify in this way to my pride in commanding such troops, so capable of achieving success in every undertaking; and this testimony I give to each of you gladly and with deep gratitude.

(Signed)
C. R. Edwards,
Major General, Commanding."

The division is now enjoying a well-earned rest, in a part of France unscared by the Great War,—in the Golden Hills famous for rich wines, dotted with quaint villages, and inhabited by smiling French people who cannot do enough for them. Shot to pieces on the field of valor, they are resting and recruiting, and it may be that, at times, their thoughts hark back to their early teachers, the 163rd French Regiment, that in October, 1917, in the village of Liffold le Grande., was resting and recruiting for the thirtieth time.

Once More

We ask you to take time by the forelock and buy now. Read the short paragraph below; it was taken from one of the daily papers of this state, therefore we see nothing but soft toed shoes in the future, that is, for the period of the war. If you want good shoes, felt heel pads, box toes and felt innersoles, we say buy now from our present stock.

Washington, Sept. 20.

Box toed shoes, felt heel pads and felt innersoles are doomed for the period of the war. The war industries board announced to-day that the manufacture of felt used for these articles must be discontinued as soon as present supplies of raw material are exhausted and at once if its manufacture interferes with the fulfilment of government orders.

OLD BILL SAYS

I called to see the Editor of the Advertiser the other day and he seemed disappointed to think I did not look older, but I may be like some children, a good deal older than I look. Next time I will get me a gray wig and whiskers and hobble in on crutches.

Sybil Heald, the other afternoon, went and laid down to read. After a while, she heard a rustle and there was a good big snake of the milk adder species looking up over one side of the bed. It is needless to say she got out of bed on record time, killed her snake with an axe and put him in the stove and that put the kibosh on him.

CURES FOR PNEUMONIA

The Rocky Mountain News says:—"Why do they let people die of pneumonia when the following simple remedy has saved not only myself, but all who have had a chance to use it?" says Marcus A. Redding, a student of human nature.

A friend of mine, Professor Henry P. Loomis, professor of medicine at Cornell university, died with pneumonia last Christmas, and all his and his associates' knowledge could not save him, hence my warning and advice, and I hereby challenge any doctor in the United States to come forward and contradict me. I am ready to defend this remedy as an absolute cure for pneumonia, even in the last stages.

Saturate a ball of cotton as large as a one-inch marble, with spirits of alcohol, add three drops of chloroform to each ball of cotton, place it between the patient's teeth, and let him inhale the fumes in deep breaths for fifteen minutes; then, rest for fifteen minutes, or longer, if needed; then inhale again fifteen minutes, and repeat the operation, as directed, for twenty-four times and the result will be that the lungs will expand to their normal condition, and in twenty-four hours the patient is out of danger, and in forty-eight hours he is cured—although weak.

Cotton should be changed twice in fifteen minutes.

Another method of inhalation for elderly people without teeth, and patients in last stages of pneumonia:

Get a small alcohol lamp, or any other heating apparatus, and a porcelain cup, make a one-inch thick cover of wood for cup—put four small nails under the cover to prevent sliding off; bore a one-half-inch hole in middle and insert in the cover a one-half-inch rubber tube long enough to reach patient's mouth, than boil alcohol diluted with water 5 per cent. or plainer, half and half (no chloroform needed in this method) and let patient inhale through tube the fumes of the boiling alcohol in deep long breaths for fifteen minutes, and follow directions above and I can assure you that you will disappoint the undertaker, and live many happy days.

But listen, do not wait until you get pneumonia, but use this simple remedy as soon as you feel that your lungs are afflicted. Give this cure to all with whom you come in contact, it is safe and reliable.

Doctors, try it, and use it for humanity's sake, and the public for your own welfare. Cut this out. It may come handy some time.

"Hot onions, according to a French physician, are said to be a sure cure for pneumonia. Six onions, chop fine; put in pan over fire and add same quantity of rye meal, and vinegar enough to make a thick paste. Put in a cotton bag and apply to the lungs as hot as the patient can bear. Change the poultice every ten minutes until the patient is out of danger. This simple remedy has never failed to cure this too often fatal malady. It is quite as effective as that of an old time doctor, who always slapped a handful of croton oil onto the patient's chest and rubbed it briskly. In thirty minutes the patient was out of danger and the doctor never lost a case."

Send the answer by letter or postal-card to Puzzler, P. O. Box 35, West Bethel, Maine.

To the first correct solver I will mail the October number of Browning's Monthly Magazine; the fifth will receive a novel; the tenth, Browning's Magazine for September; the fifteenth, "Sam Loyd's Puzzle Book," and the twentieth, the August number of Browning's. The answer to the enigma in the Advertiser dated July 12th; is: "A thousand probabilities do not make one truth." It was corrected solved by Mrs. S. W. Bradley, Nashua, N. H., Myron W. Briggs, Harrison, and E. W. Edwards, Oxford. The prize was mailed in July to Mrs. Roberts.

Now if the five prizes offered this week are not won I will send a rare silver coin to the twenty-first solver.

PRAISE YOUR WIFE

Praise your wife man, for pity's sake give her a little encouragement; it won't hurt her. She doesn't expect it; it will make her eyes open wider than they have for the last ten years; but it will do her good for all that and you too. There are many women to day thirsting for a word of praise and encouragement.

And a lot of young fools are surprised to find they can't use their wild oats to line their nest.

WORMS MAKE SICK CHILDREN

Signs of worms in children are: Deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly with occasional gripings and pains about the navel, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

The safe method for ridding the child of worms is to use Dr. True's Elixir. Mrs. William G. Bonin, of Caddo, Oklahoma, wrote regarding Dr. True's Elixir, "We have used it for our children for the last twelve years and certainly know the value of it." You can buy Dr. True's Elixir wherever medicine is sold. Pleasant tasting—gentle acting. The family laxative and worm expeller for children and grown folks.

NO ENLISTMENTS IN NAVY

All enlistments and enrollments in the U. S. Navy have been stopped and men for the navy will be secured through the new Man Power Bill.

The Navy will be alloted a limited number of men per month from Class 1-A who are specially qualified for one of the various Navy Trade Schools. These men will be obtained by individual induction.

If a Class 1-A man desires to enter the Navy and believes himself fitted for one of these special Trade schools, he can apply to the Navy District Mobilization Office, or one of the substations of such office, and if found qualified, physically and otherwise, and if needed to fill a quota, a request will be made by the Navy Mobilization Officers on the Provost Marshal General of the Army for the applicant's individual induction into the Navy as an apprentice seaman.

After his induction into the Navy by his Local Board, he will be sent to the Navy District Mobilization Office and from there to a Naval Training Station, where his rating may be changed in accordance with his ability and special qualifications.

A Class 1-A man who does not possess some of these special qualifications may be able to enter the Navy through the draft provided his order number happens to be among those which are called by his Local Board to fill a Navy call for a certain number of men for general service, but his entry into the Navy will thus depend on chance.

A man in a deferred class may apply to a Navy District Mobilization Officer for entry into the Navy by individual induction and if found qualified, physically and otherwise and if needed to fill a Navy quota, the Mobilization Officer will request his individual induction through the Provost Marshal General's Office, in the same manner for other man.

If he is in a deferred class on the ground of being in a necessary industry, occupation, or employment, including agriculture, the Local Board will delay accepting his application for induction for three full days and immediately notify the nearest U. S. Employment Service Agent that the registrant has applied for individual induction. After the expiration of this period of three full days, unless the registrant has withdrawn his request for individual induction, the Local Board will examine him physically and, if he is found qualified, shall accept his application for induction and induct him into the Naval Service as apprentice seaman.

Men of all classes for the messman branch of the Navy will be inducted in the rating of Mess Attendant 3rd Class.

Men desiring to enter any one of the several Navy Officers' Training Schools must be first inducted as Apprentice Seaman in the manner described above for other men; and then, if they are found competent and qualified for one of the schools they may be assigned to one and may eventually secure a commission in some branch of the Naval Service.

After October 1st, 1918, Navy Recruiting Stations will be known as Navy Mobilization Offices. The substations at Bangor, Lewiston and Augusta, Maine will be closed, only the main station at Portland, Maine, remaining open, where correspondence should be addressed, and men report.

THE NORWAY FAIR

Written by the children of the North Lovell School.

One cool day in September,
When the frost was in the air,
'Tis a day we'll all remember,
We went to Norway Fair.

We went there in an auto
That beat everything for speed.
We passed all the "Tin Lizzies"
And the Cadilacs we see'd.

We crossed the Crooked River
Most thirteen times, I guess.
My! You should see us stiver,
All dressed up in our best.

The fellow let us in the gate
As quick as he could do it.
He prob'ly knew we got there late,—
Well, anyway, we knew it.

First we saw a little monkey,
With pennies in his hat,
His master called him "Bony,"
But we thought him pretty fat.

We rode upon the "Ocean Wave,"
Which made us rather sick,
And when it stopped, you bet your life
We jumped off, mighty quick.

The "Merry-go-round" then next we tried.
My! It was lots of fun,
We whirled around and round and round
Just like a top, we spun.

We saw a dreadful devil-fish
A-lying in a vat,
And right beside it was a shark—
What do you think of that!

We visited the snakes and things,
And a woman who was fat.
We think she stuffed her clothes out
With pillows and all that.

We saw the puppies and the geese
And rabbits in their cage,
The handsome roosters and the hens,
And the gobbler in a rage.

The very queerest thing of all
Was a chicken with three legs,
Poor thing could hardly walk at all,
And we doubt if it laid eggs.

The only thing we didn't like
Was the man who sold ice cream.
He gave us just the leastest bit,
He certainly was mean!

THE LIGHTHOUSE KEEPER.

Washed by the spray far out in the bay
The lighthouse dark and grim,
Stands like a sentinel guiding the way
Where the ships come in.

The keeper at night keeps the light burning bright,
It fills his heart with cheer.
Though fierce are the gales the light never fails
To tell of the danger near.

He sees a white sail that is breasting the gale
Like a bird in its winged flight;
The ocean rolls and the old bell tolls
For the ships that pass in the night.

There's a rumbling sound and the breakers pound,
He knows there's a tempest nigh,
'Tis the thunder's roar and the gulls they soar
And scream on the rocks close by.

He stands close by with a watchful eye,
With his wife and children three;
He laughs at the crash of the lightning flash
And the moan of the mighty sea.

Copywright 1918.

Frederick Marshall Davis.

THE ORIOLE.

Sweet oriole! rare bird among the myriads,
Thy tiny throat attune to praise and life,
From out thy breast of gold o'er-flows an anthem
Thrilling with joy the earth and heavens rife.

Beneath the splendor of thy plumage,
A loyal heart and true beats in thy breast,
That meets alike the lofty and the gentle,
As sways o'erhead thy downy hanging nest.

Oriole, by my door thy sweet song singing,
Earth holds today no brighter spot for me,
The passion of thy music thrills my being
Like dreams of home to an exile o'er the sea.

Building thy nest in faith nor fear of truant,
Weaving the moss and down from branch above,
Resting thy trust on pledges in the heavens,
Wiser than human in thy trust and love.

Oh, robin gold! thy passion still outpouring
A song of love that makes life sweet to live;
Ah! would the sad and glad but harken,
Thy life of song to inspiration give.

When weary with the base and proud of spirit,
And all the wrongs of life that make earth sad,
O oriole, bright with deep-hued pinions,
I wait in thy dear prescence and am glad.

HIS LAST LETTER

The soldier lay with closed eyes; only a gentle movement of the cover over his chest showed that he still lived, for he was very pale. A girl in the uniform of the Y. M. C. A. stepped quietly to his side and touched his hand, for she had been told that the boy had not many hours to live. He opened his eyes and looked up at her with the shadow of a smile for she had been a frequent visitor. His lips moved and she bent her head. "So long," were the words she barely heard. The boy knew. He understood that he was going west, as the saying is.

"Can I write a letter for you? Have you any message to send?" The boy shook his head. "Haven't you a mother? Can't I write to her?" Again he shook his head.. He had no mother.

"Father?" He had no father. "Sweetheart?" He opened his eyes again and nodded very weakly. "Shall I write to her?" Another nod. The girl placed her ear close to his lips. "Her name" she asked.

At the third attempt he made her understand, and she printed it and the address in big, plain letters and held them before his eyes. He looked long, and nodded again. It was correct. "What do you want me to say? "Goodbye" "You want me to tell her you are going West, and that you thought of her and wanted to send a message of love?" "Yes"

She wrote the letter, and holding his hand, helped him to make a faint mark in place of the signature he was too weak to affix. An hour later she returned, and he had started on his journey.

This is but one case of many. The Y. M. C. A. women near the front have organized to visit the dressing stations and advanced hospitals to sit by the boys and to talk to and cheer them up, and to write letters for them. This lady was Helen Bagee, of New York City. There are dozens of others, and if the folks at home could see the light on the faces of the wounded when these women step into the tent and sit beside the cot, they would say there is indeed real reason for sending Y. M. C. A. women to France.

"They cry peace, peace,
when there is no peace"

A TRUCE, THEY SAY!

A truce—while German armies, like the tentacles of a huge octopus, still clutch France and Belgium and Russia and Roumania and suck out their very life blood!

A truce—while Germany still burns, destroys, enslaves!

A truce—while the German parliament remains the willing creature of Von Hindenburg, while the German Socialists worship at the shrine of German world domination, while the German government gives but lip-service to our President's exalted principles!

A truce—while German armies reel in utter rout from the Western front, with Bulgaria eliminated, Turkey in despair, Austria in dissension!

"The cornered beast draws in its claws and offers us its blood stained paw," say the French.

This is no time to hesitate—to parley!

Turnips will withstand hard frost, but alternate freezing and thawing injures them. Gather top, and store the roots in banks or pits, or in any outdoor storage cellar. Do not place them in the storage room in the basement of the dwelling as they give off odors that penetrate throughout the house.

INFLUENZA QUESTIONS.

To the State Department of Health many inquiries have been coming about the prevailing epidemic. This will answer some of them. Influenza is merely another name for grippe, or the anglicized and shorter form, grip. It is labelled Spanish influenza, merely because it appears to have prevailed in Spain first as a notable epidemic. It appears to differ from the old fashioned grip in being more virulent, that is, in having a higher degree of contagiousness, and in a much larger percentage of the cases being followed by pneumonia than has been usual in grip epidemics of the last ten or fifteen years. To date there have been more than 40,000 cases of this disease in our army camps, and it is estimated that there are more than 85,000 cases in Massachusetts. It will undoubtedly sweep westward over the whole country as did the pandemic of influenza of 1889-1890. But while a wide extension of the disease seems to be inevitable, and individuals who do not know what should be done or are grossly careless and inconsiderate of their own safety and that of others will pay a needless toll of loss of suffering.

Stategic Points in Our Defensive

No matter how swiftly it appears to spread, there is no reason to assume that the infection is borne on the wings of the wind. There is danger of the transmission through the air for only a few feet from the patient, and the well recognized fact that the disease is received by its new victims only by contact or close association with the earlier cases is impressed by the department in Leaflet No. 58, now going out widely to local boards of health, superintendents of schools, manufacturing establishments and the granges. All these are asked to emphasize the following points:

1. Influenza is purely an infectious disease, spread by contact or close association.

2 The chances for speedy recovery from an attack and of escaping pneumonia which so often follows are better if one's health is kept good by means of a reasonable degree of exercise, and by pure air and sunshine. But these are minor factors in helping to avoid the disease. Example: The more than 40,000 cases thus far among our robust soldier boys in our army camps.

3 Contact or close association with infectious persons is the real danger. The person with the symptoms of a cold who gets right up into your face when he talks, or coughs or sneezes in your direction at short range, is the real danger. Dodge infection, that is the main thing.

4 With the symptoms of a cold or the grip appearing in a family the sick one should have a drinking cup of his own and have eating utensils by himself. Scald with boiling water all these things used by the members of the family after each meal. In schools there is great danger from common drinking cups.

NOTE FROM JOSEPH ANDREWS

I came to Hewey, S. D., from Marietta, Ohio, the first of May, and have been spending my 74th year, in hard work on my farm, and in making repairs on the buildings. We have the best of crops ever raised and extra good prices. Most of our profits will go to buy 4th Liberty Loan Bonds, to help beat the Huns, who have about reached the length of their hold.

If I thought it was wanted when I get back to Marrietta I might write a short letter about crops, in Ohio and S. D. When I came on here I visited the Healds at Madison, Wis., and expect to visit with them on Sunday, on my return. A letter from Mrs. Heald dated ten days ago says that Mrs. Heald had just been operated upon in a Chicago Hospital and came through all right.

NO COVENANTED PEACE WITH GERMANY

America, unless we repudiate civilization and abandon humanity and put a premium on savagery and brutality, can make no convenanted peace, no peace by agreement or negotiation with Germany. It would be a covenant with hell, a partnership with infamy.

Nor would such a peace secure peace, except so long as it suited Germany. We can judge the future only by the past, and to Germany sacred treaties are scraps of paper only. Germany's whole history is a record of national treachery, national bad faith, national dishonor, national murder, and national infamy.

Article 56 of the Hague Convention, to which Germany solemnly subscribed, is: "Family honor and rights, the lives of persons and private property, as well as religious convictions and practice must be respected. Private property can not be confiscated."

The world knows how Germany has observed this article. There are millions of individual witnesses to her flagrant breaches of it. Every acre of foreign soil Germany has occupied bears mute, but unimpeachable evidence of it. There is plenty of German evidence of it, too.

"The goods of different sorts seized in the enemies' territory are in such large quantities that the difficulty of knowing where to put them increases day by day. At the request of the Prussian minister of war, all chambers of commerce have been asked to give all possible information with regard to storehouses, sheds, etc., which could be used temporarily to ware-house the spoil." (From the Frank furter Zeitung, January, 1918.)

The German papers have been crowded with advertisements of sale of property taken from France and Belgium. Members of the Relchstag have boasted of, others have censured the amount of booty brought to Germany from the occupied territory, and the destruction has been far greater than the confiscation.

Of the men and children murdered, of the women and girls ravished, of the noncombatants taken from their homes and deported to work for their conquerors, of the merchant ships sunk and passengers and crews murdered, of the hospital ships sunk, the hospitals and unfortified cities bombed, of the mutilation and murder by crucifixion and otherwise wounded and captured soldiers—of all this beastliness there is plenty of evidence, evidence that no one can disbelieve.

The best answer to German peace propaganda is sinking more U-boats, sending more men to France, speeding up our work along every line, and a heavy subscription to the Fourth Liberty Loan. Peace must mean the triumph of right and justice, the defeat of Germanism, not a truce with it, not a compromise with it.

Our soldiers in France are gloriously doing their part toward victory; the Liberty Loan subscription must show them that the people at home are doing theirs.

NORWAY LAKE

There have been many sick ones in this neighborhood. John Wood's family are all on the gain, Ralph and Roland Kilgore, Bennie and Clarence Tucker, Kenneth and Bernice Dullea, Abbie Witt, Fred Perry and daughter Mabel are all improving, and some of them have been out of doors. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Healy, Mrs. Will Tucker, Helen Dullea, Mrs. Clarence Dunham and Lucy Witt have been ill and confined to their beds for the past week. Will Ingalls is sick and confined to the house.

Asa Frost returned Monday from a short visit with his daughter, Mrs. Wm. Wood and family in Bridgton.

Mrs. Harold Ames and little son, Floyd who have been visiting here for a few weeks, returned Tuesday to their home in Portland.

Mrs. George Meader and children, who have been at Ralph Flood's, returned to their home in Norway, Sunday.

RIGHT AND WRONG LESSONS

As the twig is bent the tree is inclined. In Holland trees are trained to lie flat against a house wall like vines, or to have branches on only one side, and be bare on the other; and shrubs are made into odd shapes such as dishes and chairs and animals. Children's minds are almost as completely in the power of parents and teachers, as are young trees and shrubs in the hands of the gardener. Train a child to be kind, and when he is grown he will be kind. Train a child to be cruel, and when he is grown he will be cruel.

The spirit of construction can be cultivated by the use of toys that are chosen with that object in mind. Pictures of buildings and invention, pictures of kindness and happiness, pictures of helpfulness make as vivid and lasting impression upon the youthful mind as pictures of distruction, and cruelty, and selfishness and are better for the children themselves, as well as for all those within the circle of their influence. There are better books that recognize the heroism of firemen, life savers, teachers and nurses and those men and women who have been leaders in the world of ideas and progress. When the right seed is planted, the right crop follows.

THE COST OF LIFE

"To live is always to be hurt in some way," said a young voice recently. It was the half-resentful, half-wondering voice of one still new to the experience, and questioning their justice.

The statement is true, and the more fully alive one is, the more keenly are the hurts felt. Every joy brings with it its possible price of suffering. Every love opens a door to sorrow, every gift brings its weight of responsibility; wider knowledge brings the larger drain upon sympathy. The higher one rises in the scale of being, the greater becomes not only the capacity for joy, but also the twin capacity of suffering, but who would choose to be a clod to avoid feeling, a block of marble to escape the pain of a living soul?

MARILLA WRITES OF ANCIENT LAWS AND MODERN THINGS

E. W. Howe of Atchison, Kansas says: "Marilla Ricker, who seems to be that worst of all abominations, a woman lawyer, is advertising a book entitled: 'I'm Not Afraid—Are You?' ¶ 'Yes; I am afraid: of Marilla.'"

This is not my case and I am not over brave. Judging from action, talk and appearances she is less woman than man and is possessed with more common sense than the average. She admits to have never cooked a meal of vituals in her life and to "handying" steers and breaking colts on her father's farm in New Hampshire. She has no sympathy with the Sob Brigade or the New Thought Revelers; she is human, active, intelligent, aggressive and despises both Roosevelt and the Kaiser.

If Marilla could have occupied Lully-pop Sob Rankin's seat in Congress for the last two years there would have been no need to have apologized for her action on the ground that she was a "woman and what could you expect?" She is not afraid of Ed. Howe, man, beast, priest or the devil and does not hesitate to so inform the world. At almost eighty she is as bright as a school girl of fifty and good looking.—Editor.

In looking over the laws of Puritan Massachuetts I was "dumbfounded" to see that they possessed an almost Draconan severity. In some cases there was a fixed and definite penalty, but in most instances the question of sentence was left to the discretion of a hard and relentless judiciary. The laws relating to idlers, thieves, agnostics and drunkards were given in detail and the reader will see that justice was seldom, if ever, tempered with mercy. The law as to idle and disorderly persons was as follows:

"Idlers—It is ordered that no person, householder or others shall spend his time unprofitably, under pain of such punishment, as the county court shall think meet to inflict. And the constables of every town are required to use special care to take notice of offenders of this kind, especially common coasters, tobacco takers and unprofitable fowlers and present the same to the next magistrate."

The law as to heretics and agnostics was especially severe:

"Any one denying the scriptures to be the word of God should pay not exceeding fifty pounds, to be severely whipped, not exceeding forty strokes, unless he publicly recant, in which case he shall not have above ten pounds, or be whipped in case he pay not the fine. And if the said offender after his recantation sentence or execution shall the second time publish and obstinately and pertinaciously maintain the same wicked opinion, he shall be banished or put to death, as the court shall judge."

The court sentences of thieves and drunkards were extremly interesting. Sergeant Perkins is ordered to carry forty turfs to the fort for being drunk. Josiah Plaistow, for stealing four baskets of corn from the Indians, is ordered to return them eight blankets and to be fined five pounds and thereafter to be called Josias, and not Mr. Josiah Plaistow as he formerly used to be. John Wedgewood, for being in the company of drunkards to be set in the stocks. April 1632. Robert Cole is fined ten pounds and enjoined to stand with a white sheet of paper on his back wherein a drunkard shall be written in great letters, so long as the court shall think best for abusing himself shamefully with drink. Such were some of the laws of our Puritan ancestors less than three hundred years ago.

Where oh where would I have been had I lived in those days? Echo answers where?

I've been contradicted many times when I have asserted that a Quaker woman, Mary Dyer, was legally hanged on Boston Common. She was condemed to be hanged on October 20th 1659 and two male Quakers were condemed and hanged at that time near the Frog Pond, but the woman was spared after the rope was placed about her neck, she was sent out of the colony, but returned next year and was hanged on June 1st 1660, two hundred fifty-eight years ago the first of last June.

In the old Puritanical times the Sabbath day began Saturday at 6 o'clock when all business was laid aside. People were compelled to walk to and from Church. Not more than three years ago a man in Connecticut had a valuable horse killed on a bad road one Sunday. He sued the town for damages but the lawyer who managed the case for the town proved that the man was out for a pleasure drive and could collect nothing. Puritan clergymen preached that the saved souls in Heaven were made happier by looking down upon the tortures of the damned.

The great Ananias Teddy was to tear the State of Maine inside out and upside down and as Maine went all other states would follow suit, but Milliken's vote was cut way down and he had only a plurality. Doubtless Teddy thinks he will be President again in 1920. Every string is being pulled to that effect.

I notice that Kaiser Bill and Ananias Teddy are both dissatisfied with the way America is conducting the war. Not long ago I saw where Teddy asserted that our machine gun out-put was a "paper production." I think our machine gun record is nothing to be ashamed of notwithstanding that Great Military Genius Ananias Teddy Roosevelt sneered about it.

MAINE'S SHARE IN TAX

Maine's share of the income and excess profits tax paid to the federal government for the fiscal year ending June 30, last, under the war revenue bill of Oct. 6, 1917, amounted to $12,016,685.50. The total amount which the government collected from these two sources of income under that bill was $2,839,083,585.53. Of this great sum New York state paid the greatest proportion, her tax amounting to $689,265,600.01.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, Maine paid income taxes to the amount of $1,193,125.25. This shows that the war tax jumped the amount which is some little jump. The increased tax on Maine was larger in proportion than it was in New York. In New York, the income tax for 1917 amounted to $128,062,735.21, which was $561,202,864.80 less than was paid for income tax and excess war tax in 1918.

NORWAY AND VICINITY

HARKEN BACK ON THE PAST

Twenty-four Years Ago This Week

Edwin Cummings, who is only 19 years of age, drew the plans and has sole charge of the work of building C. B. Cummings & Sons' large grist mill near the railroad station.

L. P. Swett, the bicycle expert of this village, has been in Waltham, Mass., where he trained for an attempt to break the State record at Gardner, Me., Oct. 9. He has won 19 first prizes, 5 second, 7 third, and 1 fourth. During the last three weeks he has won $358 worth of prizes, making his winnings so far this season $700.

Ralph, son of George Lasselle, was hit over the eye last week with a shot from a toy air gun. We understand that Bert Hosmer owned the gun, but Maurice Webb, another boy, had it at the time of the accident. It is feared that Ralph may lose the sight of his eye. The wound is so severe that he has been sick since and a part of the time unconscious. It seems that even these toy guns are dangerous weapons in the hands of a child.

W. E. Wheeler and U. S. Moore were severely injured Friday afternoon by the bank caving in on them while they were digging in the trench for the piping for the steam heat supply plant of C. B. Cummings & Sons. This trench crosses the street in front of H. Cole's jewelry store. Mr. Moore had his left leg broken in two places above the knee and Mr. Wheeler's left hip was dislocated and he was injured internally. His recovery is doubtful. They both have families living in the village.

Miss Angie L. Brackett of Newton Highlands, Mass., formerly a president of Waterford, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. McIntire and family of Crescent St. Miss Brackett intended to go to Old Orchard Monday but was detained by illness.

Richard P. Lasselle of Gardiner is in Auburn, N. Y., for a week on business.

No services were held in the various churches last Sunday because of precautionary measures to prevent the spread of influenza.

"To help make the world safe for democracy" has been offered as a slogan for the girls who want to do their bit at home which will count so much for the boys who are away from home. "Sound ethics, scientific knowledge, high ideals for womanhood, loyalty to home, friends and government, faithfulness to duty and the place of women in the new democracy." "This is the stuff of which patriotism is made." It is this patriotism, as directly opposed to the cheap excitement and emotional hysteria which girls so often mistake for patriotism, that the Young Women's Christian Association is working to spread among the girls of America.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cox and their daughter, Mrs. E. E. Harris from Somerville, Mass., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar N. Cox's Thursday, Oct. 3rd.

Richard Taylor is spending his vacation hunting in the Gilead and Hasting's woods.

Mrs. Chas. G. Blake is visiting her sister, Mrs. Arthur E. Denison in Meredith, N. H.

Carrie Tucker is spending a two week's vacation at her uncle's, Herbert R. Denison's at Harrison.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stearns of Bangor have been visiting Mrs. Stearns parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stearns.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cox observed their 50th wedding anniversary, Saturday, Oct. 5th. Their children, Mr. Oscar N. Cox, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Harris of Somerville, Mass., were at home and they presented their father with a gold watch and their mother with a string of solid gold beads and a Marabou collar.

Fred Gregg received word Saturday afternoon that his brother, William Gregg, died Saturday morning in Pittsburg, Pa. Mr. Gregg left Norway the previous Monday for his home in Pittsburg after visiting his brothers family through the month of September. He was suffering with brights disease and was in Maine to gain strength after several months in a hospital. While here he carried on the Gregg store while the proprietor was on the road with his athletic show.

Judge Jones has found his scarf-pin but not through the advertising in this paper. It was a Celyon saphire and had been worn by him many years. It was found in his inside coat-pocket. It had evidently worked out of the necktie and dropped into the pocket.

Agnes J. Beal of Norway and Mrs. Mira Snow of Paris Hill were in attendance at the recent United War Work Campaign held in Portland. They were both Y. W. C. A. delegates from Oxford County. Miss Beal is Y. W. C. A. Chairman of this county.

Hugh Bethell of Auburn was in town over Sunday.

Frank G. Witham of Bath has been in town several days visiting his brother, Irving B. Witham, on Fair street, and parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Witham, at the farm.

William Kneeland has returned from the Central Maine General Hospital, where he has been under treatment since June, for injuries received at C. B. Cummings & Sons' Co. mill. The young man fell headlong on a circular saw which inflicted terrible wounds on the scalp and skull. After a short visit with relatives, he plans to secure light work until full strength returns.

The Ward Eight fruit stone club at Drake's Spot Cash Store is coming into popular favor, and many have enrolled by sending prune or peach stones and nut shells for government use. Every name will be placed on an Honor Roll.

Early in the spring he opened a mission, or a series of meetings which proved helpful and inspiring.

WOMAN WORKS 15 HOURS A DAY

Marvelous Story of Woman's Change from Weakness to Strength by Taking Druggist's Advice.

Peru, Ind.—"I suffered from a displacement with backache and dragging down pains so badly that at times I could not be on my feet and it did not seem as though I could stand it. I tried different medicines without any benefit and several doctors told me nothing but an operation would do me any good. My druggist told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it with the result that I am now well and strong. I get up in the morning at four o'clock, do my housework, then go to a factory and work all day, come home and get supper and feel good. I don't know how many of my friends I have told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. ANNA METERIANO, 36 West 10th St., Peru, Ind.

The Boy From Next Door

YOU used to see him swing gaily down the street, radiant with the vigor of his sturdy young manhood. One day he came home in khaki; then his father told you, with mingled pride and foreboding, that he had "gone across" with his regiment.

Yesterday his name was on the casualty list—"slightly wounded" —and your face grew grave as you thought of the sorrow and suspense of his father and mother.

From every city street, every village, every community, the boy next door has gone to war.

Think of these thousands of splendid young Americans, reared in comfort, peace, and security, now suddenly plunged into that roaring inferno of battle with the hardened hordes of a desperately determined foe.

What are you doing to help them?

What are you doing to arm and protect them, and bring them home in safety? Have you bought Liberty Bonds? Have you bought all you possibly can?

Has it occurred to you that one more Bond, bought with a little additional effort, may save the life of the boy from the next door?

Storm Windows and Doors

James J. Storrow, New England Fuel Administrator, says:

We ask you to impress on the householders of your community the necessity of being extremely frugal in the use of coal. In general, coal saving is promoted in the ordinary dwelling by storm windows and doors.

We Say:

Orders for storm windows and doors are already being placed in order to secure them in ample time. The demand is bound to be large and prices as low as they will be with the chance of being higher. It takes some little time to make them and now is the time to order.

Hooray for Banana Peel "Gets-It"

Only Real Way to Get Rid of Corns.

Which do you prefer—a corn that pulls or a corn that peels? Butchery or blessedness? Only "Gets-It" can get rid of your corn the peel-off way, the blessed way. You don't need a pull.

"Corns Never Trouble Me, I Use 'Gets-It'"

Why hump yourself up on the floor and with your jaws set and eyes popping from pain, jerk and gouge and cut your corns? Why irritate your toes with some salve or wrap your toe into a big painful bundle with some sticky tape or plaster? Life is too short. Use "Gets-It"—it takes a few seconds to apply and there's no fussing. Corn-pains go. Wear new shoes if you want. Peel off the corn with your fingers—the whole thing, root and all, clear and clean, and it's gone! Only "Gets-It" can do this. Take no chances.

"Gets-It," the guaranteed, money-back corn-remover, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at any drug store. M'f'd by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

A War Measure

That the transportation facilities of the nation may not be congested, that the carriers may be free to handle the tremendous government business during this time of stress, the National Council of Defense has instructed all retail stores to spread out or distribute over the months of October, November and December the usual HOLIDAY SHOPPING that ordinarily takes place during the month of December.

We are cheerfully and most heartily to co-operate with these instructions and our store will soon begin to take on its HOLIDAY DRESS, which has usually been deferred until December first.

As in former years our stocks will consist almost entirely of merchandise that can only be regarded as practical, serviceable sensible. The preparation this year will mean, simply the bringing of every department to its very highest standard of usefulness, with here and there an additional article not usually carried, but none the less useful or essential.

We ask our friends and patrons to bear in mind the wishes of the Government and endeavor in so far as they can, conveniently, to ——Purchase Early——

The Government is not asking that the dear old custom of Christmas giving be abandoned or seriously disturbed, except in so far as the distribution of the purchases over a longer period will assist in winning the war.

We will not attempt details today, but those who keep informed as to the doings of this store will realize more and more how well it has planned to take care of the needs of the public in these unusual times.

Help Uncle Sam with the

Liberty Loan

Therefore we would say first

Buy Liberty Bonds

and when this detail has been dispensed wieh THINK OF THIS STORE and what it can do to serve and furnish the needed articles of merchandise not only for Holiday Gift purposes, but for personal use as well.

The most effective answer we can give Germany is to promptly overscribe the Fighting Fourth Liberty Loan. It must be done in the NEXT NINE DAYS.
